Carmel

Never saw the waves so blue
As in Carmel Bay.
Greenest trees that ever grew,
Vivid sky above it, too;
Seems like God was lookin' through,
Smilin' all the day.

Scents of Nature in the air:
Tang of wood and sea;
Sunlight splashin' here and there,
Through the pines so tall and spare;
Birds a-singing everywhere,
Happy, wild and free.

Night a-fallin', soft and kind—
Like a velvet shawl;
Wriths of fog that grope and wind
Through the canyons, sort of blind;
Stars a-peepin' out behind
Woodland's leafy screen.

Soothin' calm of gentle days,
Like a magic spell,
Life is full of pleasant days;
Nature kind of laughs and plays;
Traveler rests and dreams—and stays
Down at old Carmel.

A jolly party of Oaklanders, headed by W. F. Steinmetz of the Examiner, spent the week-end in camp here. This is their second trip to Carmel in their big auto.

Mrs. L. E. Learned and her daughter and son are here from Pasadena, and will be joined by
Dr. Learned next week.

Miss Mai Guichard, who is to teach in the local school next term, is already here and has taken up her residence with sister Stella.

At All Saints Chapel next Sunday morning there will be two services—Holy Communion at 8 o'clock and a second celebration, with sermon, at 11 o'clock. No afternoon service.

Increased business and number of patrons at the local postoffice has made it necessary to install a hundred and ten new lock boxes and an automatic cancelling contrivance. Carmel do grow. Make it grow faster and increase property values by voting "Yes" on the Ocean Avenue bonds.

Miss Ella Tilton leaves this week for a three weeks' visit in Los Altos.

Mrs. J. V. Christy and children are occupying their "Solid Comfort" here. Mr. Christy comes down from San Jose week-ends.

Years and years ago J. F. Kair of Santa Maria bought a Carmel lot on Monte Verde street. He came up on Sunday to have a look at the property he had never seen.
Now he's thinking about building.

The "Immortal Six" were entertained at a beach picnic on Tuesday by Mrs. Arthur A. Wilson and Garnet Holme. Guests of honor were D. W. Wilard and
A. H. Vachell.

Mrs. Anna Seideneck is on her way to Chicago, having been called away on business matters. She spent nearly six months here with her son.

Mrs. Verma L. Kellogg and her daughter Jean are here from Palo Alto, and may remain through August. Dr. Kellogg is in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Arne and two daughters of Carmel were

ORDINANCE NO. 26

AN ORDINANCE CALLING AND PROVIDING FOR AND GIVING NOTICE OF A SPECIAL ELECTION TO BE HELD IN THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, ON TUESDAY, JULY 22nd, 1919, FOR THE PURPOSE OF SUBMITTING TO THE QUALIFIED VOTERS OF SAID CITY THE PROPOSITION TO INCUR A BONDED DEBT BY SAID CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF CERTAIN STREET IMPROVEMENTS IN AND FOR SAID CITY.

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea did, on the 22d day of June, 1919, by a vote of two-thirds of the members of said Board adopt a Resolution determining that public interest and necessity demanded the construction of certain street improvements in and for said City, the cost of which would be too great to be paid out of the ordinary annual income and revenue of said city,

NOW, THEREFORE, the Board of Trustees of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea do ordain as follows, to-wit:

Section 1. A special election is hereby called and ordered to be held in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, State of California, on Tuesday, the 22nd day of July, 1919, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said city a proposition to incur a bonded debt by said city for the following municipal improvements in said city, to-wit:

The grading and paving of Ocean Avenue between the east line of Mission Street and the west line of San Antonio Avenue to the official grade, and the construction therein of park spaces, concrete curbs, corrugated arch culverts, inlet boxes, outlet boxes, and concrete cut-off walls.

The estimated cost of said proposed public improvements is $7,500.00. The amount of the principal of the indebtedness to be incurred therefor is $7,500.00, and the rate of interest to be paid on said indebtedness is not to exceed 5% per annum, payable semi-annually.

Section 2. The special election hereby called and ordered to be held shall be held and conducted, and the votes thereat received and canvassed, and the returns thereof made, and the result thereof ascertained, determined and declared as herein provided and according to the laws of the State of California, providing for and governing elections in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, and the polls for such election shall be and remain open during the time required by said laws.

The ballots to be used at said special election shall be such as may be required by law to be used thereat, and, in addition to any other matter required by law to be printed thereon, shall appear thereon the following:

Municipal Ticket

To vote for the proposition and thereby authorize the incurring of a bonded indebtedness to the amount of and for the purpose stated therein, stamp a cross (x) in the blank space to the right of the word "YES."

To vote against the proposition and thereby refuse to authorize the incurring of a bonded indebtedness to the amount of and for the purpose stated therein, stamp a cross (x) in the blank space to the right of the word "NO."

Also said ballots shall have printed thereon the following:

Proposition to incur a bonded debt by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea to the amount of $7,500.00 for the construction of the following municipal improvements in said City, to-wit:

The grading and paving of Ocean Avenue between the east line of Mission Street and the west line of San Antonio Avenue to the official grade, and the construction therein of park spaces, concrete curbs, corrugated arch culverts, inlet boxes, outlet boxes, and concrete cut-off walls. Such debt to bear interest at a rate of not to exceed 5% per annum, payable semi-annually.

Sample ballots containing the above matter required to be printed thereon shall be supplied to the electors of said City by the City Clerk, but a failure on the part of any elector to receive such sample ballot shall not be held to invalidate the election or affect in any manner the legality of any ballot that may be authorized thereat.

Section 3. Any qualified elector of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea may vote at said special election for or against the proposition hereby submitted. To vote in favor of and authorize the incurring of a bonded debt for the purpose set forth in the proposition herein stated, he or she shall stamp a cross (x) in the square to the right of the word "Yes" printed opposite said proposition, and so vote against and refuse to authorize the incurring of a bonded debt for the purpose set forth in the proposition herein stated, he or she shall stamp a cross (x) in the square to the right of the word "No" printed opposite said proposition.

A cross (x) stamped in the square to the right of the word "Yes" shall be counted as a vote in favor of and to authorize the incurring of a bonded indebtedness for the purpose set forth in the proposition; and a cross (x) stamped in the square to the right of the word "No" shall be counted as a vote not in favor of and a refusal to authorize the incurring of a bonded indebtedness for the purpose set forth in the proposition.

Section 4. There shall be one election precinct within said City for the purpose of holding said special election, which shall be and is hereby designated "Election Precinct No. 1," the boundaries of which shall be the corporate boundaries of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The officers to conduct said special election in said "Election Precinct No. 1" are hereby appointed and designated as follows:

(2) Inspectors: Paul C. Prince, P. W. Search.

(2) Judges: John L. Williams, Herbert Heron.

(2) Clerks: Mrs. Bernice O. Warren, Mrs. W. L. Overstreet.

The polling place for said "Election Precinct No. 1," to be used in said special election shall be the City Hall of said City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The City Clerk is hereby directed to procure all supplies that may be necessary to properly and lawfully conduct said special election.

The polls of said polling place shall be open at six (6:00) o'clock in the morning of the said day of election and shall be kept open continuously thereafter until seven (7:00) o'clock in the afternoon of said day of election, when said polls shall be closed.

When the polls are closed the officers of election shall count the ballots cast at such election, and canvass the votes cast respectively for and against the proposition herein stated and make return thereof to the Board of Trustees in time, form and manner required for the counting, canvassing and returning of votes cast at other municipal elections held in said City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Section 5. If, at such special election it shall appear that two-thirds of all the votes cast thereat were in favor of and authorized the incurring of a bonded debt for the purpose set forth in the proposition hereinbefore stated, then such proposition shall be deemed to have been accepted by the electors and bonds will be issued to defray the cost of the improvement therein specified and to the amount stated therein. Such bonds shall be of the form and character known as "Serials" and one fifteenth (1-15) of the principal sum of said indebtedness will be paid each and every year until all of said bonds shall be paid.

Section 6. This ordinance shall be published once a week for two weeks prior to said day of election in the "Carmel Pine Cone," a newspaper of general circulation, printed and published less than six days a week in said City, and this ordinance and such publication shall constitute the notice of said election.

Section 7. This ordinance shall take effect immediately.

WEEKLY GREETING
See California thirst.

All Should Vote "Yes"

With the overwhelming vote in favor of the issue of State Road bonds throughout California and in Carmel, there should be no question of a nearly unanimous affirmative vote in our city on the 22nd of this month for the issue of $7500 of municipal bonds for the purpose of putting our main thoroughfare, Ocean Avenue in decent condition for the large and increasing traffic.

The four thousand lots in Carmel are asked to pay one-fourth of the cost of the work. Fifteen years are allowed to complete payment, making the annual tax very light indeed.

No Carmel property owner can afford to fail to work and vote for the success of this proposition. For years we have been ashamed of Ocean Avenue, and have apologized to visitors for the conditions existing. Now we have an opportunity to accomplish something. Make it unanimous for the bonds.

FRESH CANDIES
FROM

SAN FRANCISCO
Leidig's

For summer visitors, The Pine Cone three months for 40 cents.

For a week now Blondel's song in "Robin Hood" has been haunting us. Every now and then we catch ourselves whistling or humming Frances Montgomery's tuneful melody.

We are still in the shadows of a great war, and it required courage and faith on the part of Producer Garnet Holme to put on at this time a drama dealing with another period of upheaval and turmoil.

There has been a deal of favorable comment concerning the presentation of "Robin Hood," and what adverse criticism there has been is mainly in the direction of the character of play selected.

In these days when folks go to the theatre to be amused, the tragic climax of the drama did not strike a responsive chord. Those who assumed the various roles did their parts well, and it is pleasing to note that the home actors held their own with the talent from other places.

Emphatically it is the children's play, "Prince Happyheart," by Alice Chase, that carries off the palm this year. With it Garnet Holme has enhanced his reputation as a versatile producer.

One can really wax enthusiastic about the play-acting of the kiddies. They are so naive and natural—no striving after effect mars their work. And they were ably supported by Miss E. A. McLean as the "Witch," William Hauley as the "King," Garnet Holme as the "Awful Dragon," and the dances of Grace Wickham and Jeannette Hogland. One of the prettiest bits of the performance was the Shepherdess Dance.

From the entrance, in the first act, of Charis Boke (Happyheart) and Phyllis Overstreet (Jackstones) to the end of the play, the audience were given two hours and a half of fairyland and childhood's vision; just what we need to buck us up.

A word must be said for the splendid music during and between the acts, rendered by Mrs. Montgomery and Frederick Preston Search and his orchestra. In fact, the music was a very essential and desirable feature of the two plays.

Doings at Asilomar

An interesting series of meetings is to be held at Asilomar July 15-25 on the inter-church world movement. Normal and Mission study classes will be held for those paying the registration fee of $5, but at 11 o'clock daily an open parliament will be open to the public.

On Sunday, July 20, Dr. Robert Freeman will preach at 11 a. m. At 4 o'clock, visits to mission lands with missionaries as guides. "The Opportunity of the Church in Asia Minor" will be the subject of an address by Dr. H. H. Kelsey at 7:30.

Tuesday, the 22nd, Col. Raymond Robins will make the address.

Thursday, the 24th, Dr. H. F. Laflamme will speak on "The Interchurch Movement and Foreign Missions."

Up in the Air

During the past ten days a number of Carmel's heretofore placid and earth-satisfied citizens have been "going up in the air."

Terra firma used to look good to Mrs. Delos Curtis, Andrew Stewart, Dave Machado, A. H. Roseboom, and others, but when Al Wilson and Frank Clarke, recently arrived from Hollywood, began taking 'em up at ten dollars per, these good folks immediately proceeded on their heavenward journey.

But there are other things to consider. Chicken owners complain that the egg production is almost nil. The hens refuse to venture to the nests while that hawk-like thing flies between the Carmel Bath House and the Del Monte Polo Field.

Sisters Visiting Here

Nine sisters of the twenty-four of the Order of the Holy Cross, stationed in Fresno and teaching there at St. Augustine's Academy, St. John's School and St. Alphonsus School, are here for several weeks. Returning sisters will be replaced by others. Those now here are Sisters Bridget, Bennetta, Lorenza, Carmel, Marouma, Alice, Albert, Gladys, Corauna.

Program is Completed

No productions have been made by the Western Drama Society for the past two years, owing to general war conditions and particularly to the fact that a large proportion of the membership was in government work or preparing for service.

But now, released from their duties, are W. S. Cooper, Redfern Mason, Jack Gribner, Frederick Preston Search, Theodore Oriler, Ernest Schweninger, Allen Bier, J. N. Hilliard and others, and the outlook is bright for the 1919 season. All who remember the productions of "Fire," "Macaire," "A Midsummer-night's Dream," and "Tusitula" will be glad to know that the organization is to resume its activities.

The Festival this year will consist of two events. The first, on August 9th, will be Shakespeare's immortal love story, "Romeo and Juliet," and on August 16th three one-act plays will be given: Barrie's "Pantomime," Rostand's "Fantasticks" and Dunsany's "Golden Doom." The entire Festival will be under the direction of Herbert Heron.

Woodland Dancers

On Friday and Saturday evenings, July 25 and 26, Jeannette Hoagland will present her Woodland Dancers in their third annual entertainment. The success of the previous performances warrants the assertion that this year's affair will be fine. The brilliance of Miss Hoagland's dancing and the charming ensemble work of her associates is remembered with pleasure, and lovers of good stage dancing are assured of a genuine treat in the performance this month.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Calvin H. Luther, who has come back to Carmel to stay, has a short story in the July Scribner's, and another is announced for the August number of the same magazine. Both stories are of California life.

James Redfern Mason is with us again. He has been in France and Germany as a Knights of Columbus secretary. He will remain here several months.

A. W. Pooley, he of the keen ear and deft fingers, is on the Peninsula again. Orders for piano tuning may be left at the Pine Cone office.

Start of Big Industry.

Upon the invention of a machine for sewing leather shoes, for which the patent was issued to Gordon McKay, April 29, 1882, was built the great boot and shoe industry of the United States. McKay purchased, in 1859, Blake's sewing machine, which was one simply using wax thread, with a stationary horn attached. While the machine intended for sewing boots and shoes operated well in parts of the work, it failed in stitching the heels and toes. McKay changed the feeding apparatus, introduced automatic contrivances, and finally was successful in adapting it to all kinds of work. After the breaking out of the Civil war, McKay began to make army shoes, and in 1882 made contracts with 62 firms for their use. In 1876, 1,500 were in operation. These machines have been used in foreign countries, and more than 100,000,000 shoes are annually made on them in the United States.

Fashion.

Manners have been somewhat cynically defined to be a contrivance of wise men to keep fools at a distance. Fashion is shrewd to detect those who do not belong to her train, and seldom wastes her attentions. Society is very swift in its instincts, and, if you do not belong to it, resists and sneers at you, or quietly drops you. The first weapon engages the party attacked; the second is still more effective, but is not to be resisted, as the date of the transaction is not easily found. People grow up and grow old under this infliction, and never suspect the truth, ascribing the solitude which acts on them very injuriously to any cause but the right one.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Queer Notions.

It is a superstition that as soon as a death takes place in a house, all the looking glasses should be covered up or turned with the face to the wall if they are hanging glasses, and must remain covered or reversed till the body has been taken out to burial, and that no person left in the house must on any account look in the glasses during the time between death and funeral. It is strange, and somewhat akin to the idea, that it is safe to cover looking glasses during a thunderstorm. I never knew of a looking glass which was known to have drawn a lightning "stroke," though the same is possible. Queer notions are often founded on facts.—Yorkshire Post Correspondent.

The back-yard clothesline, the life-line at the Bath House, the ticket line at the Forest Theatre, perhaps the soup line and the bread line—all these Carmel may have, but, beginning on July 15, there will come an end to the waiting-for-mail line at the local Post-office window on Sundays.

Early in the Wilson administration an order was issued making it optional with third and fourth class postmasters as to Sunday window delivery. Carmel is one of the last places to abolish the practice. Box delivery will be continued as usual, so that those who must have mail on Sundays, should rent a lock box.

3-cent stamped envelopes and 2-cent post cards may not be received after July 31, and stamps not at all.

Abduction.

The hacienda where Antonio de la Guerra had lived for the fifty-odd years of his exile from his beloved Spain, where his granddaughter had been born and reared, was one of the landmarks which linger on in stately white walls under dark red tiles from the time of the Spanish occupation.

The old Spaniard was overlord of what had once been a grant from his grandfather's king, the boundaries carelessly marked in leagues instead of miles.

He bred cattle and fine horses, intrusted Gaucho Morales, his foreman, with the business details, and yet managed, so large and fertile was his empire, to go on from year to year swelling his wealth.

The wide-verandaed house with none of its walls less than three feet thick, with great, spacious rooms, spread out across a wide extent of the shaded land among the olive and pear and pepper trees. In the time of the father of Antonio de la Guerra there had been fourteen rooms—now there were twenty. No less could suffice for the master of the estate and his cherished granddaughter.

There was the patio with its flowering garden and leaping fountain. About it were the rooms, all on the ground floor with the exception of the three rooms added by the old man for the use of la senorita.

Here at the southeastern exposure of the rambling dwelling, a wide and winding staircase had been constructed to lead upward to a spacious landing.

Then came broad doors, a deep window, and beyond the senorita's private sitting room. Her bedroom was high-ceiled, with much ornate embellishment after the Moorish fashion, and a lavish display of gilt under the domed roof.

Upon the landing a couch where some night Pedro lay across his mistress' doorway.

And then the balcony.

Teresa must pick up her skirts daintily to step out through the deep windows to it from her bedroom, and once there she was all but lost behind the bank of flowering roses, swallowed by a dim dusk through which the moon had difficulty in filtering, lapped in the perfume of the flowers which clung about the balcony in the warm June night.

And from here, while her scholarly grandfather annotated his remarks concerning the hated Americano, Teresa leaned out, her beauty as soft and delicate a thing as that of the rose brushing her cheek, and talked with one particular Americano.

"Make me some pretty speeches, Senor Billy," she laughed softly. "They float up to me here through the moonlight like the perfume from red roses!"

She had drawn her mantilla closely about her for no other reason in the world but to tantalize the man below her by hiding herself from him, and there was only her voice and the vague outline of her young body through the vines to tell him that she was there.

But to her his face, uplifted in the moonlight, flushed and eager, was unhidden.

"You are a flirt!" he cried, seeking to make his voice savage and angry, and succeeding admirably in filling it with adoration.

"But no," she answered him from the dusk about her. "That is to be cruel. And I—I am so soft-hearted that to make one suffer would distress me."

"If you roll your r's at me like that again," Stanway told her very positively, "I am going right in and tell the old gentleman that I am going to marry you!"

She laughed gayly at his impetuous declaration.

"It would be like a play," she said after a little as though she were thinking seriously of what he had said he would do. "It would interest me to see. Papa grande would be very polite and would ask Senor Billy to have a glass of wine and a cigarita."

"And then"—the laughter welling up again in the eyes he could not see, trilling in the voice which dropped down to him—"he would call Pedro and old Juan to take you outside and shoot you with their guns!"

"And you find that funny?" demanded Stanway.

"Is it not? It is like the opera!"

"You are dying for an operatic scene?" His voice still rang with the eagerness within him, his hand was upon the vines which clambered about her balcony. "Let me climb up to you—"

"You must not!" she cried quickly.

And then, seeing that he hesitated, she added lightly, again settling herself comfortably upon her cushioned seat. "That would be only musical comedy. And I should have to go inside and shut my window and run downstairs to papa grande. And—Sh!"

He could make out the gesture as she laid her fingers across her red lips, could see that she turned toward the open window behind her.

"Quiet ex?" she called carelessly.

"Yo, Pedro," came Pedro's answering voice. "Senor Dempton has gone. The master says that in half an hour he will be glad to see the Senorita Teresa."

"Bueno," she answered lightly, "I hear, Pedro." And then when she also heard Pedro's light tread on the stairway, descending, she turned again

"I Must Go," She Said Softly.

toward the man below her. "I must go," she said softly. "Papa grande wishes me."

"Not for half an hour," he said quickly. "I heard that."

"But," as though she were hesitating, "I should go now. It is very unkindly of me to be here with you. If I had known that you were coming I should certainly not have come out to look at my stars."

"You are a little humbug, Teresita," he laughed at her. "You did know that I would be here, and you were glad of it, and you came out just to see me."

"To see you?" And he could imagine the arching of the brows above her great eyes.

"And to tease me. But look here—"

"I am looking, senor. Mama mia, but you are handsome in the moonlight. More so than by day!"

"I did not come here tonight to make you pretty speeches," said Stanway stubbornly after his way. "I came to tell you—"

"Yes?" expectantly. She clasped her hands and leaned a little farther out over him, allowing him a glimpse of her laughing face, of white arms and throat from which the mantilla was slipping.

"That I love you—"

"Oh!" She seemed to lose interest, but again her face was hidden.

"And that I actually and positively mean what I say when I tell you that I am going to marry you."

He could not see the flush which crept into her cheeks, nor the light in her eyes, but went on swiftly, unguardedly, his voice almost stern with the emotion upon him:

"The border is unsafe. Mexico is going to be torn to pieces this time before temporary truce comes again. You need someone to take care of you."

"You forget papa grande," she reminded him gayly. "You seem to have a habit of forgetting him."

"Your grandfather," he said in the same quiet tone, "is not the man to protect you now, for three very good reasons: He is too near the border and too rich to go unmolested by the rebel bands, who have already made more than one raid into American territory under cover of night."

"And he is too Spanish. He was born in Spain, his father kept him there until he was of age. He is a Spanish and not an American citizen."

"How kind and thoughtful you are, Senor Stanway," she mocked him. "Do you find it necessary, every time you come across a young woman who needs protection, to marry her?"

His mood did not soften with hers this time. In Billy Stanway's own words, "he meant business."

"Your grandfather has already lost cattle to the raiders," he told her. "It is known all over this end of the state that he is his own banker—that he always has a large amount of gold and silver in the house."

"Some night he is going to be called upon for something more than just cows to feed the hungry rebels. And then—"

"Then I should be protected?" she murmured demurely. "I should be married to an American whose mighty nation is feared by the Mexicans? That is it, no? Bueno. Does Senor Stanway know my kinsman, Eduardo Ramon Torre? He is a Spaniard, of blue blood and of Castle, senor. And he is a naturalized American citizen. He—"

"Is a d—d young puppy!" snapped Stanway irritably.

"With us," said Miss Teresa stiffly, "one does not swear in the presence of a lady. Nor does he insult her through her kinsmen."

"I beg pardon—honestly I do, Teresita," Stanway hastened to say. "But you shouldn't mention the young reprobate's name if you don't want me to swear, and you know it. Now I'm coming up—"

His hand was again among the vines seeking a hold somewhere and being mocked by the smooth adobe wall. Teresa de la Guerra, alarmed, was upon her feet protesting. And then:

"Sh!" she called down to him. "It is papa grande. I heard him call. Another time, Senor Billy. Some other night—maybe tomorrow, who knows—and I shall steal out for a little walk with you. I must go now. Buenas noches, Senor Billy."

It was softly said, and there was the caress of the soft southern speech. "I am coming, too," he called up to her. And she knew that he meant what he said. "I shall come around to the patio and so to the front door. I am going to talk with your grandfather tonight, Teresa mine!"

A laugh floated out and down to him, a rose fell, striking against his face, there was the rustle and flutter of a mantilla among the vines, and the girl had stepped back through the window, closing it behind her.

She stood a moment, hesitant, her cheek a little pale. Then the thought that even now Stanway was on his way around the great house to the patio drove her in haste first to her mirror and the rearranging of her hair the rose vine had disturbed, then to a quick descent of the broad stairway to the main floor.

The utter stillness of the drawing room smote her as she entered. The candles were like shimmering ghosts.

De la Guerra was not in the room. Immediately she was dimly conscious of an unreasonable sense of uneasiness, even before she had the vaguest reason for it.

And then the reason asserted itself. A chair lay overthrown, a little way from the chair a rug was crumpled and thrown back, the ink bottle which had been upon the table lay upon the floor.

As her eyes saw, her brain understood.

And as she stared, before her voice had found its way to her lips, she heard a sharp knocking at the front door.

She ran to it swiftly, threw it wide and whispered fearfully:

"Senor Billy, I am frightened. Look!"

He looked the way her pointing finger went, a moment in frowning failure to comprehend, then in sudden black anger.

"You mean—" he cried sharply.

"Yes," she whispered, clinging to his arm. "A moment ago I heard him call out. I—I was talking with you and did not heed, but there was anger in his voice. I came down and—look, he is gone! There was a struggle—see the chair thrown down, the rug, the ink spilled there!"

Stanway left her side, striding abruptly to where the bottle lay.

There was a dark smear on the carpet near it. He leaned over it, stooping, seeing the candles reflected from the dark surface.

And his face, too, was very white as he straightened up, drawing a deep breath between his teeth.

He managed to stand between the girl and the dark smear.

"Get Pedro," he commanded sharply. "Have him call the servants, the vaqueros, every man of them. Have them come armed."

The girl turned and ran swiftly through the great rooms, down the long hallway to do his bidding, a sharp fear clutching her heart. Stanway, when she had gone, stepped quickly across the room, snatched up a rug there and threw it down upon the carpet, covering the dark spot near the bottle.

Then he stood still, waiting.

As he waited there came to him from the silence without a faint drumming sound, the noise of horses' hoofs in a mad-tattoo of flight through the night.

"The rebels," he muttered angrily. "They are taking what is left of him back across the border."

He ran to the window. The curtain there was torn. Moonlight and candle light showed him where wood and plaster were scratched as in a hurried exit.

Then Teresa had come back to him, her great eyes wide with alarm, and the servants were already trooping in, sleepy-eyed and mystified.

In Meerschaum, Smokers Acknowledge
That One Good Thing Has Come Out of Turkey.

Eski Scheir, in Asiatic Turkey, has one unique claim upon public interest, and if one is a smoker that claim is a compelling one. It is the home of meerschaum. Meerschaum in abundance is found only on the plain of Eski Scheir, and this city produces all the marketable meerschaum in the world.

Meerschaum, as its name implies, is supposed to be petrified seafoam, and has been discovered floating on the Black sea. Apart from the Eski Scheir mines it occurs in Greece, Samos, Spain, Moravia, Utah, Pennsylvania, and, in conjunction with serpentine, in Norway and South Carolina.

The ancients are said to have used it as a decorative stone in buildings, and this seems to have been confirmed by the recent excavations in Corfu. It is soft and whitish, and becomes malleable like clay when soaked in water.

Meerschaum used to be considered a mere curiosity by the Turks, who had no other use for it than as a substitute for fuller's soap. The story runs that the Turkish ambassador at the Austrian court, in the eighteenth century, was a native of Eski Scheir. Wanting to help his city at a time of great poverty, he took a sample of this queer stuff to Vienna, thinking that the "Franks," as all foreigners were then called, might have some use for it. The Germans were quick to see its utility for pipe bowls, but declared it was good for nothing else.

More than a century has confirmed this judgment, for who has yet discovered any other use for meerschaum? For pipe making it is an ideal raw material. Here is a stone which is easily molded when wet, and when dry becomes hard and resists fire.

CHINA LOSING TRADE IN TEA

General Opinion That Scientific Cultivation of the Plant Has Been Begun Too Late.

China's tea trade is not keeping pace with the world's consumption of tea. Scientific cultivation instead of old-time methods and the use of machinery are being used in the effort to regain the lost commercial ground. The ministry of agriculture has established a model farm, and the first tea grown on it was sent to market this year. It is said to have been of good quality, but no details are yet available of the equipment and methods employed. Foreign tea men seem to have little faith in the results of this attempted reform and consider it unlikely that Chinese teas will ever regain the leading place in the markets of the world. It is said that Chinese teas have less tannin than other teas, and that the finer grades are unsurpassed in delicacy of flavor; but the average tea drinker seems to find the teas of India and Ceylon satisfactory.

When to Shut Your Eyes.

In an article about Thomas Edison in the American Magazine, William Maxwell, the vice president of the Edison company, said:

"One bit of executive strategy that I learned from Edison has stood me in good stead a dozen times. He had the wise habit of knowing when to shut his eyes. There are times in every organization when controversies arise between even the most loyal and best intentioned subordinates. Sometimes it is the wisest thing for the man at the top to know nothing whatever about them, to let them work themselves out. 'I learned a great many years ago,' said Lincoln, 'that in a fight between man and wife, a third party should never get between the woman's skillet and the man's ax-helve.'"
